

Scott Stuewe

Scott Stuewe and his wife, Sarah, have lived in Williamsville for 13 years. Their son, Sean, is a 2007 WHS graduate. Scott grew up in an educator's family as his father was Director of Music in his home town of Norton, KS for over 40 years. Scott is in his second term on the Williamsville CUSD #15 Board of Education.

Scott is a graduate of Kansas State University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Fisheries Biology and Management. After graduation he went to work for the Indiana Department of Natural Resources in fish hatchery management. After 2 ½ years in Indiana, he and his wife moved back to Kansas to work in the state fish hatchery system and was the first hatchery manager of the then new Milford State Fish Hatchery located near Junction City. After 8 ½ years in Kansas, Scott and Sarah once again moved, coming to Illinois to manage the Jake Wolf Memorial Fish Hatchery located near Manito for another 8 ½ years before moving into the Springfield DNR central office to supervise the two Southern Field Management regions of the state. This ultimately lead to Scott becoming Chief of Fisheries for the State of Illinois, where he stayed until 2007, at which time he decided it was time to move on and accepted a Senior Fisheries Biologist position with HDR Engineering, where he is currently employed.

When he finds the time, Scott is an avid hunter and fisherman, Harley rider, SCUBA diver and Certified Flight Instructor. He still likes to sing and play his trumpet.
